EVENT

A Time to Review

The Editorial Board of EVENT magazine would like to invite all interested parties to an open meeting at which a discussion will be held on the future editorial policy for the magazine.

The Board feels that now that the magazine has established itself as a magazine of recognized quality, it is an appropriate time to review and to establish a clear editorial policy for the next three-year period.

The format of the meeting will be a discussion period at which time people of the College who are interested in the magazine can express their feelings regarding its function and method of operation. Members of the Editorial Board will be present at the meeting and will use the information supplied to help them in arriving at a final decision.

Since David Evanier has left the College, the magazine will be looking for a new Editor. It is, of course, imperative that we have a fairly clearly defined policy in which the new Editor can operate. The meeting will be held on Thursday, September 27th in Room 304 on the New Westminster Campus.

INTERNATIONAL STANDARD BIBLIOGRAPHIC DESCRIPTION (ISBD)

The Library of Congress expects to be producing catalogue copy incorporating the changes required by ISBD for most materials by early 1974. Will you know what to do with it?

This session is designed to familiarize librarians and library assistants with the International Standard Bibliographic Description (ISBD). ISBD is an extension of the existing methods of describing documents, i.e., the portions of the catalogue record other than the heading and tracings. The standard rules for composing this segment of the catalogue record comprise Part II of the Anglo-American Cataloging Rules (AACR).

ISBD is already being applied in the compilation of major national bibliographies in Europe, Australasia, and the Americas, including our own Canadiana. It was developed primarily to facilitate the international exchange of bibliographic data in such a way as to minimize the problems of language and of computer processing of the data. Although it is based on AACR, it also serves to provide a more widely acceptable standard because of certain alterations (chiefly minor) to existing AACR practice.

The widespread adoption of ISBD is requiring revisions to all of Part II of AACR, and the most important chapter, Chapter 6 on monographs, has recently been rewritten and is due to be published late this year. The Library of Congress expects to be producing catalogue copy incorporating the changes required by ISBD for most materials by early 1974. This session will help cataloguers to anticipate the changes, and will help reference librarians and searchers to interpret the data already being found in its new form in national bibliographies and other sources.

NOTICE:

As a consequence of the following letter from College Council to the Faculty Association, Dev. Shergill and a second representative of the Faculty Association Executive Committee will be attending future Council meetings. If you should wish to attend also please give Dev. a call.

John Hazell.

Mr. Dev Shergill
President
Douglas College Faculty Association
New Westminster Campus

Dear Dev,

College Council Meetings

One of the members of our College Council, Mr. Jean-Pierre Daem, has asked me to send you a memo advising you that by policy the meetings of the Council are, in general, open to the faculty and staff. The only exception is when certain confidential matters have to be discussed at in-camera sessions.

Meetings are normally held on the first and third Thursdays of each month although during the summer months the practice has been to try and reduce the number of meetings. The location schedule at present is to hold the summer meetings (to the end of August) at the Richmond Campus, the fall semester (September to December) at the New Westminster Campus, and the spring semester (January to May) at the Surrey Campus.

The next meeting of Council will be held Thursday, July 5th at the Richmond Campus. The meetings normally commence at 8:00 P.M. and in the case of this July 5th meeting we will be holding an in-camera session from approximately 8:00 to 8:30 P.M. and from then on it will be open to the general public.

If you have any questions concerning the July 5th meeting or any other meeting that you would care to attend, please do not hesitate to give me a telephone call. Also, I would appreciate it if you would extend this invitation to other members of the faculty. Because of space limitations, I would also appreciate knowing if you expect a large number of faculty to accept this invitation on any one occasion.

Yours very truly,

M. H. Morfey

NEW COLLEGE STUDIED

Sun Victoria Bureau
VICTORIA -- A feasibility study into construction of a new college in the Fraser Valley was announced Wednesday by Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

The study will be carried out by a task force under the commission on education.

Mrs. Dailly said the task force would also be asked to recommend the kind of facilities which may be required in future to "offer a full program of post-secondary services in the Fraser Valley".

The task force will be headed by two educational specialists: William Day, dean of continuing education at Douglas College, and Eric Woodroff, supervisor of auxiliary services for the Chilliwack School District. Both have been given temporary leaves to carry out the study.

The study is slated for completion by Nov. 1 and will be financed by the commission on education. The task force will work in co-operation with the Valley College Steering Committee which includes the local superintendents of schools.

The above appeared in the August 23, 1973 edition of the Vancouver Sun.

ILLIAD TRANSLATED

My Father-Out-Law has translated and abridged Homer's Illiad in the original dactylic hexameter so that when spoken in English it has the same lyric quality of the original Greek.

This papervack is becoming quite popular with the High Schools in Washington State. I have seven copies left of the just one-hundred. These are autographed.

They sell for $4.00 each, and if anyone would like to buy a copy, drop me a memo. (Surrey Campus) or call me at home.

The Serpentine Wildlife Management Area

During the summer the Hon. Jack Radford, Minister of Recreation and Conservation, announced the establishment of a new provincial wildlife sanctuary, the Serpentine Wildlife Management Area. This embraces the 240 acres of land between the Serpentine River, King George VI Highway and Highway 499 on which Ducks Unlimited (Canada) is conducting the first phase of its Canada Goose programme, and where Douglas College has its Environmental Studies Centre. Throughout July and August Ducks Unlimited biologist, Tom Sterling, and project supervisor, Bill Hooey, have directed the construction of the dykes, ponds and islands which will convert the western part of the area into a marsh. Though the primary purpose of the new marsh is to provide nesting habitat for Canada Geese introduced to the area, it will also provide nesting, feeding and loafing opportunities for a great variety of other waterfowl and shorebirds.

The area east of the new marsh has been mown and grazed in order to keep the grass in a close-cropped condition attractive to waterfowl. Part of the crop of approximately 5,000 bales of hay will be used to provide winter feed for the cattle used in this part of the operation. The remainder will be sold to off-set running costs.

The pheasant rearing operation has been kept fairly small this season. Sixty ring-necked pheasants have been reared. Some of these will be released to breed wild next spring; the remainder will be kept penned to produce eggs for incubation by the stock of bantam hens, which has also been built up this year for future use.

Considerable effort was diverted from pheasant rearing to meet the need to hold two flocks of Canada Geese until the large (30 acre) pen on the D.U. Project was completed. One flock of approximately 200 birds was delivered by air from Niska Waterfowl Park, Ontario. The remaining 60 birds were transferred by the Canadian Wildlife Service, Fish and Wildlife Branch and Ducks Unlimited from the Reifel Refuge. Two pens were constructed for the geese; one in the orchard and the other directly across Wade Road. These areas are suitable for future use as pheasant rearing and release pens and can be supplied with water or drained via the ditch system to the Serpentine River.

The Environmental Study Centre building has now been installed on the east side of the Orchard Pen. This will contain an office, display area and meeting room. The latter may be used for meetings of local groups, clubs or societies devoted to environmental work or recreation. Bookings should be arranged with the Warden.

In addition to the Nature Trail, we now have a Game Habitat Management Circuit designed to encourage a commitment to active game management by fish and wildlife clubs.

This and other construction work, and hay harvesting was achieved this year thanks to the Local Initiative Programme and Opportunity for Youth Grants which we obtained, and also thanks to the long hours and patient work of the Warden, John Smith.

Visits

Last spring there were 803 visitors to the Serpentine Pen. In addition the staff of the Institute of Environmental Studies visited schools and spoke to a total of 350 students.

As usual, the Environmental Study Centre will be open to class/group visits this fall. However, in October the use of the Nature Trail will be limited in order to reduce disturbance of the flocks of migratory birds using the new marsh and grazing area for the first time. If you wish to book a visit please check which facilities are available.
